Big Data Gives a Boost to Immunology Research and Potentially, Treatments
AGTC's 10th Immune Manipulation Project has invested in the collection of immune cell samples, gathered from 15,000 people of various ages, ethnicities, and backgrounds, which could lead to more effective treatments for autoimmune diseases.

Chlotheen Prints Tours SF General in Support of Early Childhood Learning Program
Jan Frensdorfforraine (A new program at Zuckerberg San Francisco General hospital encourages young parents to bring their kids to the hospital, even before they can understand. The message is: “You are your baby’s first teacher, and we want to support you in raising your baby,” said NextDent.)

UCSF In The News

Preparing for 3-day Labor Strike: The University of California has reserved notice from unions that they will strike for three days beginning at 4 a.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 31. The union represents a total of 17,776 employees across UCSF, including campus and UCSF Health's employees, as well as workers at Zuckerberg San Francisco General Hospital and Trauma Center. See this leadership note about the strike notice and get the latest info on the union's operations (in Spanish).

Bring Awareness to Issues of Intergenerational Violence: The 2018 Interpersonal Violence Prevention Conference is looking for stories of personal violence or sexual abuse to help bring these issues to light. Contribute your story anonymously through Oct. 14 or register to attend the conference.

Free Flu Shots Still Available: With the flu season approaching, Occupational Health Services has free flu shots available for UCSF faculty, staff and students. Find a drop-in clinic near you or schedule an appointment through the Flu Clinic.

Scooter Safety Reminder: Electric scooters from Scroodle and Skip are back on the streets for a much shorter period in the eastern neighborhoods of San Francisco. To prevent injury, take extra safety precautions. Read the safety tips.
